DYNAMITE DENOUNCED,

DISCOVERY OF A MYSTERIOUS DOCUMENT IN LONDON.

Dooming St. Paul's Cathedral and the Daily Telegraph Office—New York Clergymen Denounce the Outrage—The Senate Passes a Resolution.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Constables Cox and Cole, who were in the explosions, and who were reported greatly improved, are in a precarious condition. There is little hope of their recovery. The anonymous document unearthed Sunday gives the plans of further operations contemplated by the dynamiters, and furnishes descriptions of several of the leaders of the dynamite party. It is believed by the police officials to be an important paper. Among the structures which it says are threatened are St. Paul's Cathedral and the Daily Telegraph building.

Another man has been arrested. He and the prisoner Cunningham, who was arrested Saturday, were arraigned at Bow street station. His alias is Linton. He was charged with complicacy in the explosion at the tower. The prisoners were strongly guarded and constables were distributed in great numbers in all the approaches to the court. Cunningham is of medium height, dark hair, black eyes, with an expression so slinker as to attract immediate attention. His features are sharp. As he stood in the dock he smiled slightly, but appeared ill at ease. Under his overcoat he wore a suit of dark clothes and in his hand carried a hat such is worn by deerstalkers. Police Inspector Abberline deposed that when the prisoner was exeminel at the tower he was very much confused and his statements were extremely contradictory. He first gave a wrong address, and finally said he lived at Scarlero street, White Chapel, and that he worked at the docks at Liverpool until the beginning of the year, when he came to London in order to better himself. He formerly lived in America, and at one time worked on board the White Star steamer Adriatic.

Inquiry by the police at the prisoner's lodgings showed that he was known there as Dutton. A box and bag found at Scarboro Street House were seized. Inspector Abberline said the president of Liverpool, to whom telegrams had been sent containing the prisoners statements as to his abode there, could find no trace of him, and the people at his alleged address denied all knowledge of any person calling himself by any of the prisoner's aliases.

The prisoner's hands show evidence of hard work, and he speaks with a strong Irish accent, which, however, is tinged somewhat with the nasal intonation commonly attributed to Americans.

On being questioned by the presiding magistrate, the prisoner admitted the statements of Inspector Abberlin to be substantially correct, and declined to ask any questions. He was then remanded for a hearing on Tuesday, February 3.

Col. Majendie, chief inspector of explosives made an examination of the scenes of the explosions and allowed none of the debris to be disturbed until photographers had been completed and as many views as were considered necessary by police were taken. As soon as the existing aspect of the wreck had been placed on record, Col. Majendie and his assistants began the work of locating the focus of the explosions.

The police regulations are unique in the history of the metropolis. All persons whose appearance excites suspicion, or who carry parcels not easily recognized as containing ordinary merchandise, are stopped and searched.

People are still nervous and excited. News of any new development is awaited with the greatest anxiety.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—A reporter called upon the pastors of several Roman Catholic churches in this city to obtain views on the dynamite outrages in London. They were free in expressing opinions in hearty denunciation of the acts as the lunatic outbursts of fanatics, who imagined that patriotism gave cover to crimes of the most cowardly sort. Vicar Gen. Preston said:

"From every pulpit in the world should go up solemn warnings against such tendencies to crime as are shown in this outrage and the prayers of the Christian world should go up that never again may civilization be dimmed by such a cloud."

Father Dashon, head of Paulist fathers, said: "No wrongs Ireland may have suffered in the past can be put into the scale to counterbalance such an act as that of Saturday, and America should join the other nations of the world in putting down the villains and making them an example to similarly disposed persons when caught. The slaughter of the innocent in such a way makes this one of the nameless crimes of the age."

Father Healy, o' St. Bernards, said: "Love for Ireland has nothing in common with such methods of assassination. I think it would be a good idea to have some popular impression made in the way of a mass meeting, so that the world may be able to understand how Americans feel on the matter."

WASHINGTON, Jan 26—The choir laid before the senate Mr. Bayard's resolution expressing the horror and detestation of the senate at the recent attempts to destroy the houses of parliament, and other buildings in London.

Mr. Beyerd in moving the adoption of the resolution said he was better satisfied now to ask for the adoption of this resolution, because the senate had an opportunity to affirm deliberately its opinion of the uncivilized, cruel, and barbarous attempt to destroy human life in another country, with its buildings dedicated to the government and the laws, in the vain hope of possibly gaining relief from suffering by thus overthrowing law itself in its very citadel.

It seemed to him proper that the lawmaking body of the American people should express its antagonism to such proceedings, which by destroying law must necessarily destroy all liberty which could only exist under law. He asked for the yeas and nays on the passage of the resolution.

Mr. Riddleberger said he received with profound sorrow the news referred to, but he was not prepared to say that he received it with indignation. The reason given by the senator from Delaware (Mr Bayard) that because, forsooth, this was a building where laws were enacted that guaranteed liberty to the subjects of Great Britain, was not sufficient for him (Riddleberger) to vote for the resolution. While the United States was preparing exeriments as to methods of blowing ships out of the water by dynamite, it did not beco me them to say that a people who had not the right to issue a proclamation of war, should not use the same instrument. If we were places in a country where we could not exercise the God-given right of owning land, even though earned by the sweat of our brows, what would we do? He did not justify the methods used, but was not willing to express sympathy with a nation which allowed none of her sons to exercise that liberty which we enjoy on this side of the Atlantic.

Bayard's resolution adopted by a vote of 63 yeas against 1 nay (Riddleberger). Every senator in the chamber voted.

Minister West's Views.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Minister Westayre that England has no animosity toward America on account of the dynamite troubles, but is justifiably indignant at the delay in passing suppressive laws against the manufacture of explosives. He remarked that there is no danger of an interruption of the amicable relations of the two countries, and that the passage of the Edmunds bill will be very gratifying to the English people. "America must not imegine," said he, "that it will be exempt from the operations of the Irish dynamite conspiratom. The organization, infamous as it is, has an extended sympathy, which, if not checked, will command the active co-operation of all persons who are in favor of upsetting social order. England is not alone interested in exterminating the dynamiters, a fact the United States will speedily realize if it does not adopt a vigorous policy. The time may not be far distant when infernal machines are exploded in the crypt of the American capitol as they were in the house of commons."

Congressman Flaherty Reticent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—"We have no proof that the explosions were caused by Irishmen," said Representative Flaherty. "Should they have been so, it is simply the result of the brutal treatment to which Ireland has been subjected. As an Irish-American, I cannot weep for the woes of a country that never wept for the woes inflicted on my native land. I regret that any innocent person should suffer and I wish that England's policy had left Irishmen a manlier, and more attractive means of proclaiming vengeance and asserting their rights. The pride of England will retard her acknowledgement of fear, but when her passion shall have cooled down, she will see that the only way to abate an evil, which no army can combat, is to remove the causes of dissatisfaction."

MRS. GORDON'S PRETTY PISTOL.

It Perforates a Tramp's Hat and Makes Him Drop a Silver Butter Dish.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Archibald Gordon lives in Tompkinsville, S. I. On Sunday a tramp knocked at her door and begged for a meal. He got plenty to eat in the kitchen. Mrs. Gordon and her maid were alone in the house. After the tramp had finished eating he pulled his chair close to the fire and stuck his feet up near the grate. Mrs. Gordon then told him to go. He picked up a silver butter dish from the table, put it into the pocket of his ragged coat and seated himself again at the grate, remarking, with an oath, that he would get out when he got ready.

Mrs. Gordon happened to have a pretty pearl handled revolver in the pantry. The tramp did not see her as she took the weapon from a shelf. She stepped to the front door and sent a bullet through both sides of the crown of his hat. The bullet flattened itself against the fireplace and dropped at the feet of the astounded intruder. His hat was knocked off by the force of the powder and fell beside the bullet. The tramp jumped to his feet. He found Mrs. Gordon standing near him, and the muzzle of her tiny weapon directly on a line with his eyes. Mrs. Gordon quietly said:

"The next shot will go right through your eye. It might kill you, unless you put back that butter dish and get out, as I tell you."

The tramp did not stay long enough to pick up his perforated hat. He threw the butter dish on the table and fled. The hat now hangs outside of Mrs. Gordon's back door, where the tramp can get it if he wants it.

Base Ball Differences Ended.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 27.—The base ball war has come to an abrupt end. The rival presidents of the Union and American clubs have settled their differences, and Mr. Von der Ahe has promised to no longer oppose Mr. Lucas, but do all in his power toward making a league club here successful. The gentlemen even went so far as to talk over a series of games which their respective clubs shall take part in, in the early springtime. Mr. Von der Ahe's course is generally commended by the base ball public here. It is stated that Dunlap, Shafer, Sweeney and Rowe, of the Lucas nine will be reinstated by the league, and continue with his team.

A Chain of Fatalities.

BELLAIRE, O., Jan. 27.—W. H. Berry and his son Lewis, glassblowers working at Barnesville, received a telegram Saturday, stating that a daughter living in Pittsburg, had committed suicide. In hurrying to make the train the old gentlemen overexerted himself and dropped dead in the depot from heart disease. The body was coffined and accompanied his son and wife from here. They telegraphed the sad intelligence to Mrs. Berry at Pittsburg, who, already prostrated by the loss of her daughter, died Sunday. The son and wife, therefore, will attend three funerals instead of one.

Stamping Out Horse Disease.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Jan. 27.—State Veterinarian Pearen has condemned six horses and ordered that to be slaughtered, near here, it having been decided that they were afflicted with glanders. All the other stock is quarantined, and the mangers, feeding troughs and stable ordered burned. All this was the property of Wm. B. Adams, about five miles northwest of this city. The disease is supposed to exist in other parts of the county. Dr. Pearen will come from Decatur next week to investigate its extent and adopt measures to stop it.

DEATH OF TOM FIELDS.

BILL TWEED'S OLD FRIEND AND THE COUNSEL OF HIS RING.

A Fugitive From Justice, Unknown and Forgotten—Looked Upon by Canadians as More Unfortunate than Criminal —His Career in New York.

ST. ANDREWS, Quebec, Jan. 27.—Thomas Craig Fields, ex-corporation attorney of New York, and one of the most notorious and conspicuous figures in the great Tweed ring which plundered the tax-payers of the city out of untold millions of dollars, died here Sunday morning of pneumonia. It will be recollected that after the startling exposures growing out of the discovery of the gigantic stealings of Tweed and his rascally associates, Fields was arrested, but gave bail, which he forfeited a id fled to Canada, where he has since resided. He brought with him a large share of the plunder of the ring, and in the time of his death lived in such strict seclusion that he was almost forgotten by the friends who had flocked around him in his palmy days of Boss Tweed's reign.

On February 4, 1872, Fields was indicted by the grand jury of New York for bribery, while a member of the legislature. He was a member of both houses, serving first in the assembly and subsequently in the senate during the session of 1864. On the day following the indictment he was arrested and gave bail in the sum of $25,000. The testimony before the grand jury was to the effect that Fields had been largely instrumental in securing the passage of a bill March 6, 1868, appropriating $2,000 in aid of certain volunteer fire companies; that afterward he entered into a corrupt agreement with certain persons, under which he received 33 per cent. of all moneys that he received for the alleged use of the fire companies, and that he presented fraudulent claims to the comptroller for $471,952 81 and received a warrant for that amount. It was also shown that he agreed with the firemon for 50 per cent of all additional amounts he could obtain under similar claims. Chief Engineer Wenmes also testified that Fields stated to them that he had been compelled to pay one of the two persons who signed the warrant under which he obtained the money, the sum of $71,000, and it was shown that the amount actually received by the fire companies was only $19,740.68.

Subsequent investigation showed that Fields secured from the city money, over $50,000, out of which his share of his spoils was not less than $20,000. In October, 1874, Fields finding that his conviction was assured through the efforts of the committee of seventy, which had accumulated a complete network of evidence around him, establishing his guilt, fled from the city. His wife guarded his secret so sacredly that not until he reached Canada did he make known the fact that he had shaken the dust of New York from his feet in exchange for that paradise of refugees, a Canadian grave. As his offense not being an extraditable one no effort was made to secure his return. Tweed had already fled. Harry Genet has skipped away. Sweeney had also flown, and A. Oakey Hall, only one remained, stood trial, was acquitted. Two years ago Genet returned and served out his term on Blackwell's island, but the lawyer thief continued to enjoy his freedom to the end of his earthly career.

During the Tweed regime in the metropolis all middle aged and in ny young New Yorkers will remember Tom Fields' magnificence. He was looked on as one of the world's favorites. His flatterers trooped after him in battalions, until the crash came. It is said here that he brought $2,000,000 into this country with him. The people here say the Canadians treated him like a man who was more unfortunate than criminal. He was, they say, "rolling in riches." He was magnificent and lavish in his style. He speculated in real estate and lost heavily. Some people thought he was ruined. Then he disappeared suddenly. Many of his most intimate friends did not know where he had gone.

He had purchased a farm from John C. Abbott, now the attorney for the Canadian Pacific Railway. For years Field lived a life of strict retirement. He spent his time in improving land and raising cattle. He was forgotten by the world. His friends and associates were the simple habitants around him.

There are very few English people where he made his home, and he was not bothered by news gatherers. But lately he was a new man. He came into the active world again, and recently talked of going back to New York. Since the death of his old enemy, Charles O'Conor, Fields was trying to sell his property. As soon as he succeeded he said he would return to the United States, but he failed to secure a purchaser. He visited Montreal but seldom, and when he did was not known, except to a few.

A Church Broil Over Music Matters.

LOVINGTON, Ill., Jan. 27.—A disgraceful scene occurred in the Christian church at this place on Sunday. For some time the church has been divided on having organ music during services. After the regular services some members opposed the dismissal of the congregation for the purpose of settling the music question. Angry words were freely indulged in by both sexes, women calling men liars and men calling women liars and inviting each other to fight. A general scrimmage was avoided by calling in the police. M. H. Minor, a local elder. frocked down F. L. Hostelle, an ex-deacon.

A MINNESOTA LEGISLATOR'S PLAN.

Proposing to Solve the Liquor Problem in a Way That Will Abolish Taxation.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 27.—Senator O'Brien has introduced in the senate, and a special committee has recommended its passage, a bill which provides for $5 permits to be issued to such adult male residents of the state as can prove to village trustees, town supervisors or city aldermen that they are only moderate drinkers and that their families and friends are not liable to suffer want or disgrace through their indulgence. Every resident who drinks in a saloon or public place must have such a permit, and any infringement of the law is punishable by fine for each offense, the money for such permits and fines to be converted into the general reserve fund in the several counties. Senator O'Brien is satisfied that the amount received would soon be so large that all other taxes could be abolished. Every man would have a permit, for to be without one would give rise to the suspicion that he could not get the needed certificate.

Senator O'Brien said he never saw a Maine man who wasn't a prohibitionist by profession, and by practice the other thing, and he proposes to put Maine and other prohibitionists, of whom there are a number in each house, on the record as in favor of or opposed to the only practicable solution of the liquor problem. He regards his bill as such solution.

Alive, Though Officially Dead.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 27.—A man was found dead near this city a short time ago, and Coroner Rice, of Rondout, held an inquest. A number of witnesses identified the corpse as that of a Polish peddler, who for years past sold cheap jewelry and spectacles at farm houses between Catskill and Tappan, on the west bank of the Hudson, and between Peekskill and Hudson on the other side. A verdict was rendered that the deceased came to his death from exposure.

One night last week Coroner Rice was awakened by a very angry man, who, in broken English, demanded to know why he had been declared a dead man, and who asked him if he thought such a decision was that of an honest man. The coroner at first supposed he had a crank to deal with, but when the light revealed the features of the visitor he saw it was the peddler who was supposed to have been buried in short time ago. The indignant Pole proved to the coroner that the witnesses had been mistaken, and then he insisted that he ought to have "his right," even if he was a foreigner and a spectacle peddler. The coroner said he would cheerfully accede to almost anything, so as to satisfy his irate visitor, who said that if he was given a certificate with a big seal to the effect that he was neither dead nor buried, and that he had lost none of his "rights" to own property, he would make no more trouble. The coroner accordingly satisfied the man who had been declared dead, and his visitor departed.

A Sunday Morning Accident.

TOLEDO, Jan. 27.—The special train bearing the members of the union association of lumber dealers was derailed near Bunning, Mich., Sunday morning. Four coaches left the track and two were turned over on their sides and completely demolished. The following persons were injured: P. B. Beech, of Sidney, O.; D. C. Fisher, Findlay, O.; J. W. Aiken, Bergettsburg, Pa. Several others were slightly scratched. With the exception of Mr. Fisher the entire party arrived in this city Sunday evening, two coaches having been furnished by the Michigan and Ohio railroad. The accident happened on the Chicago and Western road and was caused by a defective switch.

Life is Cheap in Texas.

SAN ANGELA, Tex., Jan. 27.—Last Saturday night on the sheep ranch of Fitz Karger, fifteen miles north of here, two Mexicans entered the out-shed and killed Henry Metzger, and seriously wounded Moore Tremhie, Fred Smith and another man. The murderers, named Manuel and Dalsio, were employed herding on a neighboring ranch belonging to Karger. They entered the hut while the men were sleeping. A posse is pursuing the Mexicans. No cause for the attack is known. The wounded men will die.

Bell Telephone Patent Voided.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 27.—The minister of agriculture has delivered a decision in the Bell Telephone Company case, voiding the patent for the reason that the company, or representatives, had imported patented articles after twelve months from the date of the patent; also for not having manufactured in Canada such articles to the extent required by law after two years of existence of their privilege; also for having refused to sell or deliver licenses for persons willing to pay a reasonable price for the private and free use of their patented invention.

A Mexican Croesus.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Jan. 27.—Victoriano Nieves is one of the luckiest men in the world. He lives at Carmen, in Mexico, and is worth several millions. Saturday he and his wife celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. It was a great day for Sig. Nieves. He gave a banquet and scattered dollars right and left. Five hundred thousand dollars in one lump was sent to the poor in the locust eaten district, and $10,000 was given to the republic to pay off the American debt.

Couch Ready for Action.

WICHITA, Ks., Jan. 27.—A special messenger is here from Couch's camp at Stillwater, in the Indian territory. He reports that at the boomer's camp 375 men, thoroughly armed, are under Couch, and will make all attempts to remove them from the territory. An additional detachment of troops has passed through here, en route to reinforce Col. Hatch. Couch's messenger will return at once to Stillwater with supplies.

Is He Recreant?

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Nathen Lock, of West Sixth street, whose husband travels, selling pasms and similar pocket goods, has returned from Indianapolis, where she had been fruitlessly searching for him. The couple were married about three years ago, and her discovery of his correspondence with a former sweetheart, now in Chicago, leads the wife to the belief that she has been abandoned.

Bay State Election Expenses.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—The financial statement of the Massachusetts independent committee of one hundred shows that the committee spent $17,089 in the state campaign and sent $3,000 to the national committee in New York. The committee received by subscriptions $21,988 and has a balance on hand of $1,019. The republican state committee spent $30,066 in the state campaign.

Murder and Robbery Probable.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 27.—Thomas Priest, a prominent merchant of Kingsville, O., was found lying on a dark street at midnight, in a dying condition. His skull was frightfully fractured, and a bloody club was found near by. A large sum of money which he had drawn from a bank in the afternoon was missing. There is no clue to his assailant.

THE DAILY BULLETIN.

TUESDAY, EVE, JANUARY 27, 1885.

THERE has been a heavy fall of snow in the Northwest.

THERE is not much hope for the Grant relief bill at this session of Congress.

THE Springer investigating committee will make their report some time this week.

Professor C. E. Williams, of Daughters' college, died suddenly at Harrodsburg, Ky., on Saturday. He was a relative of Senator John S. Williams and Colonel R. M. Kelley.

IT is to be hoped that we shall speedily reach bottom in the present depression and that with the inauguration of the new administration will come restored confidence and more prosperous days.

THE paragraph in the message of Governor Hill, of New York, that "not an official of the State of New York has been guilty of any defalcation or malconduct in office during the past year," is significant and illustrates the rigid honesty of the administration of Governor Cleveland.

THE Senate of Alabama has passed a bill prohibiting speculation in futures and prescribing penalties for a violation of the law. One section of the measure declares contracts for future deliveries of grain, cotton, meat, stocks, bonds or any commodity or produce whatsoever, void and not payable. The act was passed only after much discussion and its fate in the House is uncertain.

THE Rt. Rev. Camillus Maes, the new Bishop of the diocese of Covington, was consecrated in that city on Sunday. He is thirty-nine years of age, was born in Belgium and was educated for the priesthood with special regard to fit him for the work in America. He came to this country in 1869, and began his labors in the diocese of Detroit. He is an author of considerable celebrity and is looked upon as one of the brightest and most useful members of his church.

THE New York World says: It is needless to review Grover Cleveland's acts as Governor when they have just received so signally the approval of the nation. It is sufficient to say that the qualities he displayed as executive of the State—his steadfast adherence to the public interests, his contempt of the acts of the demagogue, his fearless championship of popular rights, his unyielding incorruptibility, his plain truthfulness, and withal his sterling Democracy were his passports to the favors of the people all over the union.

THE New York World says: The Ohio Legislature has adopted a joint resolution providing for the placing of a statue of William Allen in the Capitol Pantheon in Washington. This is a just tribute to the fame of one of the most honest, incorruptible men ever identified with the affairs of the State. William Allen was the Virginia saddler's apprentice who rose to the United States Senate and who was called to the Gubernatorial chair, after years of retiracy from politics, when the Democrats of Ohio were well-nigh without a leader and an organization. He was a contemporary of Andrew Jackson. His life was pure, his aims were lofty and the American Republic never had a more sincere friend.

Happiness at Home.

[Puck.]

It is not always the costliest home that is the happiest. Now, take the Indian wigwam. It doesn't contain the luxuries of the bank president's home. All the carpet is an odd rope or two, the luxurious arm chair is the ground, and there is no bric-a-brac except a scalp or two. Yet the Indian is happy. There is not a shadow to dim the pure old gold sunshine of his wild life. He sees the smoke curl softly upward from under the kettle that contains his meal, and float away through the rustling needle of the pine.

This picture makes his happiness complete, as he lies on the ground calmly smoking and watching his wife do all the work. It is no wonder the Indian likes home, because that is the place where he never has anything to do but sit around and sleep. When he comes in from the hunt in he is never sent off to the village to have some crestone matched, or told to sit and hold three or four hunks of yarn that are to be wound, he doesn't have to take care of the papooses while his squaw goes out shopping, he doesn't have to stand on a barrel and build up the obstinate stove-pipe section by section, with the soot pouring down in his eyes. He isn't asked what every woman he met had on, and is consequently not blown up for having noticed.

Think what a happy home the Indian has, when you come to consider that his wife doesn't wear a fit dresses, or $30 bonnets, or care anything about the opera, or horses or carriages. Why, the squaw is perfectly happy in a blouse and a pair of army trousers. The noble woman makes every sacrifice to render her husband happy. He never knows what it is to be kept awake half the night to be talked into making some frivolous and unnecessary purchase, or to learn that the squaw in the next wigwam possesses something that his does not. These are some of the things that tend to make the Indian's home happy.

The Wife Was the Better Shot.

NEW BERN, Va., Jan. 27.—At Wallace's Switch, a few weeks ago, Jerry Love, a mountaineer, had a quarrel with his wife, in which she picked up one of his guns and told him to leave the house or take the consequences. Love left, and went over the Bristol line. A few days ago he returned home, armed, and determined to effect a reconciliation or get possession of the house. After a brief parley with his wife she said she could not live with him again. Love then said he would take possession. He drew a pistol, and his wife drew another. Both fired rapidly. Loves shots were wild, and he missed. Two balls from the wife's pistol struck him, one making a wound in the stomach from which he died. The woman was arrested, but after a full hearing was acquitted, on the ground of self-defence.

Stabbed in the Back.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—At a late hour Saturday night Mary Hamilton, an inmate of Mrs. Lucinda Crawford's house, on George street, was seriously stabbed in the back by an unknown party, who after making the murderous assault fled and escaped. The woman was assisted to Elfers' drug store, where her injuries were attended, after which she was removed to her home. None of the women are able to give any information as to who the knife-user was, any further than a description of him. The wounded girl is in a dangerous condition, but her injuries are not thought to be fatal.

The Big Cotton Swindle.

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 27.—Easton, the principal factor in the big cotton swindle that is at present undergoing investigation in the district court, stated that Baum, Lowenstein, Cammack and himself were the only ones involved in the steal and that $107,000 was the amount purloined. This sum was to be divided equally, but Cammack has stolen $12,000 of his portion. He denied that the county attorney promised to release him for testifying to the facts connected with the robbery. He will again be placed on the witness stand and will divulge other damaging facts.

No Wonder.

A MAN WHO SUFFERED MENTAL AND PHYSICAL AGONY EIGHT YEARS PROCLAIMS HIS HAPPINESS.

Mental agony is dreadful, but when that and physical ailment combine, it is simply terrible. Such was the condition of Gen. W. Frampton, of Huntington, W. Va., for eight years. He was a sufferer of neuroses—that is, the leg bone at the ankle was inflamed and mortified, which caused running sores. He says: "Pieces of bone the size of a silver three cent piece came out of the sores on my leg. The discharge from the sores was almost continual, and I was unable to walk. For eight years I have been doctoring. I had been under the treatment of a physician at Newport, Ky., for a year; another at Burlington, O., attended me for three years, and a doctor here at Huntington worked with me for a long time. None of them did me any good, and they all finally said my case was hopeless. A few months ago I commenced trying PERUNA, and now I am well. I can walk as good as anybody, and have perfect use of my limbs."

Mr. Alf. Lusk, Wooster, Ohio, writes: "DR. HARTMAN, Columbus, O. I have been a great sufferer from that dreaded disease, chronic catarrh of the stomach. I have thoroughly tried your MANALIN, and it has done me more good ten-fold than all the doctors' prescriptions, and I have used legions of them.

Mr. Edgar Harte, Smeltzer P. O., Elk county, Pa., writes: "I have bought several bottles of your PERUNA, and find it to be of great benefit. I also gave it to some of my friends; they experienced the same result."

Mr. L. R. Wollen, 45 and 47 Ross street, Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I am taking PERUNA with good results, and can highly recommend it to all. I have applied at the different drug stores for one of your books. They claim they have none on hand at present. Please do me the favor to send me one."

W. W. Russell, druggist, Canonsburg, Pa., writes: I handle your medicine, PERUNA. I have sold immense quantities of it, and consider it a staple article. I have a great many customers who think there is no medicine like it for a tonic or for building up the system. I recommend it as a safe and reliable remedy."

Callata Fishel, Malvern, Ohio, writes: "I take pleasure in recommending the use of PERUNA and MANALIN to any one afflicted with any form of lung or bronchial trouble. I have been for some time afflicted with a very troublesome cough, but a few bottles of PERUNA entirely cured me."

THE following concerning the Frohman will case, in which some of our citizens are interested as heirs, is from the Louisville Argus: The much ventilated Frohman will case has assumed a new phase, consequent upon the advent of another heir in the shape of a posthumous son of the late Solomon Frohman. It will be remembered that in the divorce suit against his wife, Frohman charged her with conspiracy to take his life. Death put an end to the divorce suit, and after that event a will was found, which devised his large estate to his relatives, cutting his wife off with a dollar. This was contested by the wife, who claimed her dower rights. The matter has been dragging on in the courts for some time, but a few weeks ago Mrs. Frohman claimed to have given birth to a child by her deceased husband, and she has named it Solomon White Frohman. Mr. Zack Phelps, who had been appointed executor of the will, immediately filed a petition asking that this posthumous heir be included among the defendants in the suit to break the will. Yesterday, Laura Gore, a legatee under the will filed an answer and cross petition in Law and Equity Court to Mr. Phelps' petition. The answer is a very wordy and long-drawn-out document. Its gist is a denial that Mrs. Frohman has ever given birth to a legitimate child by her deceased husband. It also states that the two had not lived together as man and wife for more than ten months previous to the birth of the child, and declare, in addition, that Soloman Frohman was impotent a year before his death. The petition concludes by asking that the will be enforced and that the other petition be dismissed. Altogether this is a remarkable case.

CRAZED BY RELIGION,

A FRENZIED MOTHER ENACTS A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

Choking Her Boy to Death and Cutting Her Own Throat—Her Daughter's Escape—The Child Recovers and Tells the Story of the Awful Crime.

NEWPORT, Ky., Jan. 27.—A terrible and shocking tragedy took place here Sunday noon. Mrs. Carrie Winslow, wife of Mr. George Winslow, of Buffalo, N. Y., in a fit of craziness killed her eight-year-old son Walter, and attempted the life of her ten-year-old daughter Daisy, and then cut her own throat. The terrible event occurred at a quarter to 12 o'clock at the woman's residence. Within a year past she began showing symptoms of insanity, and these became so decided last spring that she had to be sent to the sanitarium at College Hill, near Cincinnati. Last November she was sent home, seemingly cured. At a quarter to 12 o'clock the two children were with her in the middle room upstairs. She bade the little girl to go down stairs for a paper. As the child passed out she carefully locked the door, and snatching up a piece of twine, placed it about her son's neck and strangled him to death before he could make a struggle. The little girl returned in a moment, and as she entered her mother closed the door and locking it remarked: "Daisy, we must all die together." She drew a razor from her pocket and was making for her daughter when the child, screaming with all her might, ran to the door, endeavoring to get out. The frantic mother then snatched up a base ball bat and struck her over the head, felling her to the ground insensible.

The woman then cut the child's throat, inflicting three large gashes, but not severing the jugular. She then cut her own throat, inflicting a frightful wound, stretching from the ear to the chin.

The room where the tragedy occurred presented a frightful and sickening appearance.

The tragedy created the wildest excitement in Newport, and in no time the house was crowded with sight-seers.

The reason for the mother's awful deed will be understood when it is known that she had fits of insanity, superinduced by religious excitement.

Upon searching the woman's pocket the coroner found a lot of twine string and the following note:

"DEAR MOTHER—I have been a sufferer for years. I see that my sufferings are incurable. Charley and sister, look after mother. I have prayed and suffered and there is no hope for me and I don't want my children to suffer after me and leave them behind. CARRIE."

A few other notes were found, the purport of which was that her action was not inspired by the want of money, but that death would be her only solace. The little girl is seemingly improving, and will probably recover.

She is a child of remarkable intelligence, and vividly understands everything that occurred. She told the story of the awful deed in the clearest possible manner. She stated to those around her that her mother refused to let herself or her little brother go to Sunday school, and also that the mother insisted on making the beds, and refused to allow the servants in the room.

All were startled and almost dumbfounded when the little sufferer stated that she had sufficiently recovered from the blows and cuts she received to actually witness her mother taking her own life with the razor. She says her mother kissed her three times after she thought she had killed her, as she was afraid to move, thinking her mother would again attack her.

She explained how her mother knelt before the looking glass, and after cutting her throat, dropped her head to the floor, in which position she was found dead.

The doctors say that the blows on the head did not fracture the inner bone of the scull, and the probability is she will recover. Coroner Dann ron summoned a jury, which, after taking testimony, returned a verdict in accordance with the facts.

A Death Sentence Affirmed.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 27.—The sentence in the case of ex-United States Marshal Wm. Spence, who shot and killed his son-in-law, ex-Marshal Edward S. Wheat, in this city, March 11, 1884, for which crime he was sentenced to be hanged, has been affirmed by the supreme court. Spence, who was exceedingly calm, took a seat in front of the five members of the court, and did not take his eyes off them until he was ordered to be remanded to prison. He gave no outward sign of emotion and did not speak even after the court sentenced him to be executed within the jail in this city on March 14. Judge Cooper, who pronounced the death sentence, was visibly affected. The court decided that there was no grounds for the plea of insanity introduced by the counsel for the defendant, and that though he was addicted to drinking to excess he was in his right mind when he killed Wheat. Spence is seventy years old.

Paul Holman's Apology.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—As full particulars of the Holman-DeCastro brawl in the Stewart ballroom are made public, they present young Holman in a somewhat different light. It turns out that Holman insulted a young lady at the ball, and it was DeCastro, and not Holman who was her defender. Holman was arrested by three policemen. Challenged to a duel he wrote the following apology:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.

MR. C. DECASTRO—Mr. Holman regrets that, under the influence of liquor, he should have offered to Mr. DeCastro a perfectly unwarranted insult, and hopes that, considering the circumstances, Mr. DeCastro will kindly overlook Mr. Holman's action. PAUL HOLMAN.

DeCastro accepted the apology, and the affair is ended. It has made a great stir here.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Jan. 27.—Gen. McCook says that in a few days he will, through the proper channels, call attention to a few matters concerning the battle of Shiloh, and his part therein, which will show that what Gen. Grant says about him (McCook) in the matter is absolutely without foundation in fact. He says the Gen. Grant has persistently pursued him for twenty-two years. The general says this is the first time he has ever broken silence on this subject.

His Head Split Open.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 27.—News has just been received of a horrible murder in a cedar brake twelve miles from Boerne, Kendall county, on Saturday afternoon. A trifling dispute between G. T. Hamble and another man, name unknown, resulted in the murder of the former with an ax. His head was split open. The sheriff and citizens are in pursuit of the murderer.
